

ABSTRACT

The invention discloses the use of a method for automatically accounting for stock events that may effect an investor's portfolio. The method involves providing a database that can be used to describe how an investors investments may have changed
5 as a result of stock events that occurred during a time period when an investor held a stock.